Name of Nominee _____

State _____

Total Points _____

The J. Eugene Grigsby Jr. COMC award honors individuals who have made distinguished contributions to the field of art education in advancing and promoting education, investigation, and celebration of cultural and ethnic heritage within our global community. The record of achievement may reflect remarkable scholarly writing, research, professional leadership, teaching and/or community service that advances the ideals of culturally responsive pedagogy in teaching and learning communities. Further, this award highlights the legacy of Dr. J. Eugene Grigsby Jr. in bringing to light accomplishments historically and contemporarily by people of color in fully advancing NAEA policy and practice.

Dr. J. Eugene Grigsby, Jr.

Celebrated artist, writer and educator Jefferson Eugene Grigsby, Jr. brought the enduring concept of culturally responsive instructional approaches to the forefront of art education. Emphasizing the human rights imperative intrinsic in the inclusion of culture and ethnicity in art education, Grigsby brought attention to the centrality of art education to the civil rights movement in America. Dr. Grigsby modeled through both his scholarship and NAEA involvement his vision for the inclusion and recognition of traditions, artistic practices, and accomplishments of people of color within the visual arts.

Grigsby represents several decades of leadership within NAEA which include vice president of the National Art Education Association from 1972-74, president of the Arizona Art Education Association from 1988-90, chair of the Pacific region, and contributor to the establishment of the Committee on Multi Ethnic Concerns in 1980. Grigsby began his undergraduate work at Johnson C. Smith University in Charlotte, North Carolina. Within a year, he transferred to Morehouse College in Atlanta, Georgia, where he first met his long time mentor, Hale Woodruff. Under Woodruff's tutelage, Grigsby graduated from Morehouse College in 1938 equipped with extensive artistic experience that he would retain throughout his life. Grigsby went on to obtain his B.A. degree from Morehouse College, his M.A. degree in art from Ohio State University and his Ph.D. in art education from New York University.

Dr. Grigsby has a long and distinguished career as an art educator. He began working at Carver High School as an art teacher. After the closing of the school in 1954, Grigsby began working at Phoenix Union High School where he remained until 1966. In 1958, early recognition of his leadership included his election by the Museum of Modern Art in New York City to represent the United States as an art teacher at the Children's Creative Center at the Brussels World Fair. This experience inspired Grigsby to initiate a number of art programs in community centers, housing projects and day care centers in the Phoenix area.

Grigsby began teaching at the university level in 1966, working at the School of Art at Arizona State University until 1988. During this time, Grigsby published Art and Ethics: Background for Teaching Youth in a Pluralistic Society, the first book ever written for art teachers by an African American artist and educator. In 2001, The Art of Eugene Grigsby Jr.: A 65 Year Retrospective was featured at the Phoenix Art Museum. The exhibit featured insightful commentary of Grigsby's life and influence on the art and education world by his many colleagues, friends and family.

NAEA Manuel Barkan Memorial Award Rubric

Name of Nominee _____

State _____

Total Points _____

This award is conceived as a tribute to Dr. Manuel Barkan. Selection is based on a work of scholarship published in Art Education or Studies in Art Education published from October 2014 through September 2015.

Manuel Barkan (1913–1970)

"A visionary art educator at Ohio State University" who had "designed a model of art education that combined the teaching of art history and art criticism with art making activities" (J. Paul Getty), Manuel Barkan recognized the role of disciplinary structures of knowledge in guiding curriculum decisions but his views on curriculum reform embodied a synthesis of viewpoints, some reflecting the influence of social reconstructionism and Progressive education from the 1930s.

Barkan taught art for the Roslyn, Long Island, school district. He left New York to accept a position in the education department of the Toledo museum and, during the war years, worked as an industrial designer. In 1947 he was offered a position to teach design at the Ohio State University, and became head of the art education area after receiving his degree in 1951. He held this position until his death in 1970.

Barkan regarded the social environment as a place where the child learns through his or her interactions with others. Barkan did not regard self-expression as the principle aim of art education as was common with his contemporaries. Rather, he saw it as a means through which children could be encouraged to interact with other human beings thereby to establish their sense of self.

Barkan wrote A Foundation for Art Education (1955) and Through Art To Creativity (1960). With Laura Chapman he prepared Guidelines for Art Instruction through Television for the Elementary School followed by a set of guidelines for aesthetic education (1970), a program of the Central Midwestern Regional Educational Laboratory. He also presented his Curriculum and the Teaching of Art report to the NAEA in Washington, DC (1964).

NAEA Marion Quin Dix Leadership Award Rubric

Name of Nominee _____

State _____

Total Points _____

This award is presented in honor of NAEA's third President, Marion Quin Dix, in recognition of her pioneer work in the development of NAEA as a national professional organization. This award is given to recognize outstanding contributions and service to the profession by a current or past State/Province Association officer in the performance and/or development of specific programs, goals or activities at the State/Province Association level.

Marion Quin Dix

After teaching for twenty years (1923-1943) Marion became the Art Supervisor in Elizabeth, New Jersey and retired twenty nine years later in 1972. She also taught summers and Saturdays at Rutgers from 1931 to 1969. As Art Supervisor for Elizabeth, Marion had each art teacher stop using the standard coloring book lessons and develop their own course of study.

By the summer of 1946 most art programs were stopped because of World War II. This is when Marion had the idea of the Creative Art Education Workshop which allowed educators time and access to test out art materials as opposed to conventions that simply allowed them to pick up literature on art materials. At the time Marion was chairman of the Professional Relations Committee for Eastern Arts and questioned why there was no national organization to connect the four regional art educator organizations. During meetings to explore this concept, Marion nominated Dr. Edwin Ziegfeld, Head of the Art Department at Columbia, as the first chairman of the NAEA in 1947. She was asked to run for the next presidency term but turned it down because she did not want the Eastern region to be over represented. Then 2 years later Marion Quin Dix became the third president to the NAEA (1953-55). She was concerned that art educators were selling art education to themselves, so she made efforts to bring in people from other fields with the goal of having more integrated education.

Marion was the first woman to serve as president of both the Eastern Arts Association (1949-50) and the National Art Education Association (1953-55). She is the author of many articles about art education and has received many awards including an honorary doctorate from Kean College in Union, New Jersey.

Creativity	A driving energy for our work: NAEA values creativity, forward thinking, and innovative problem solving. We are committed to fostering an environment for learners and educators alike that cultivates passionate and intentional exploration of and contribution to the world through experiencing and making art.

Interconnectivity	Together, we can: NAEA is a community of, by, and for members. We are grounded by a shared Mission and Vision and aspire to evolve based on the needs and opportunities shared by our community. As a collaborative network, we strive to be welcoming, stand together, and show support through our actions, words, and relationships.
Inclusivity	Fostering a welcoming community: NAEA is continuously working to cultivate an environment of acceptance and inclusion. This type of environment is sustained by a collective responsibility to lead through curiosity, learning, understanding, and empathy.
Ingenuity	We are all growing as leaders: NAEA at its core is a teaching and learning organization. Creative adaptation, research, and continuous growth are cornerstones of our work. As instructional leaders in the arts, we also recognize and celebrate the leadership skills we bring to our roles to foster robust visual arts, design, and media arts education programs, such as advocacy, collaboration, and establishing safe spaces for expression.
Responsibility	Taking care of our communities and ourselves: NAEA recognizes the importance of professional and personal nourishment. We support educators as they prioritize time, energy, and space to successfully advance their own performance goals and better serve their learning and professional communities. We also encourage restorative self-care and are committed to offering resources and opportunities to equip individuals in their achievement of best practices.

 +3 points if service & achievements ONLY AFTER retirement are listed on Vita

Judge's Name _____

TIE BREAKER FINAL SCORE:

RUBRIC DIRECTIONS: (See sample rubric below.)

1. First, read one achievement listed on the nominee's vita and decide under which achievement category it should be listed: "Teaching," "Professional Leadership," or "Other Contributions."
 2. Next, make sure that same achievement happened after the date of retirement and put one tally mark in the appropriate orange box in the "After Retirement ONLY" column.
 3. Then decide on which level that same achievement should be scored and put one tally mark in the appropriate yellow box. (At the end of scoring this same achievement, the total number of tally marks in the orange boxes should be the same as the total number of tally marks in the yellow boxes.)
 4. Lastly, if the nominee has held an office or chairmanship in this same achievement, place one tally mark in the purple column.
5. Repeat steps 1-4 until all achievements on the vita have been scored.
6. At the bottom of the rubric there is a place for extra credit points. Please circle each +3 that qualifies for that nominee.
7. Now sign your name at the bottom of the rubric beside "Judge's Name." At this point you are finished and can send me your results. I need a separate rubric for each nominee with all tally marks clearly shown and extra credit points circled on each rubric. Once I receive your completed rubrics, I will check all of the math for accuracy.

Rationale for "Achievement Categories":

"Teaching, Professional Leadership and Other Contributions" are the three categories established for the RAEA National Emeritus Art Educator Award.

Rationale for "Achievement Color Zones" and "Extended Values":

1. The orange column gives credit for achievements ONLY after retirement, which is the focus for the award.
2. The yellow columns represent the different levels of achievements. The higher the level; the greater the reach of influence for students and mentoring of other teachers, therefore each level progresses in extended value.
3. The purple column is used to acknowledge (and encourage) those who have put in the extra hours it takes to be a leader in the field. A nominee who has held an office or has been a chairman of a committee should receive more points through the extended value than one who has just been a "member" of a committee.

Rationale for "The Tie Breaker Extra Points":

In case there is a tie when comparing the "Total Score" results from all of the voting members of the Emeritus Award Selection Committee, each candidate will receive...

- "Extra credit points" for following directions with their submission materials. The extra credit points, when added to the "Total Score" results in the "Tie Breaker Final Score" (yellow highlighted line).
- If a tie still exists, the Emeritus Award Selection Committee Chairman uses the higher "After Retirement" "Extended Value" Total as the deciding factor. (Red box)

NAEA Viktor Lowenfeld Award Rubric

Name of Nominee _____

State _____

Total Points _____

This award was established in 1960 by friends and former students of Dr. Lowenfeld. Selection is based on the relationship of nominee's contributions to the work of Viktor Lowenfeld and the level of significance of contributions made to the profession.

Viktor Lowenfeld (1903–1960)

Viktor Lowenfeld, professor of art education at the Pennsylvania State University, helped to define and develop the field of art education in the United States.

Austrian born Lowenfeld taught art in the elementary schools in Vienna while attending the Vienna Academy of Fine Arts. Then, the Vienna Kunstgewerbeschule as well as studying sculpture under Edward Steinberg. Inspired by Sigmund Freud, Lowenfeld developed ideas on the therapeutic uses of creative activity in the arts resulted in several books: Die Entstehung der Plastik (The genesis of sculpturing, 1932), Plastische Arbeiten Blinder (Sculptures of the blind, 1934) and his first English and his first English publication, The Nature of Creative Activity (1939).

During World War II Lowenfeld taught psychology at the Hampton Institute in Virginia. A number of his Hampton students became prominent artists, including John Biggers, Elizabeth Catlett, and Samela Lewis. Lowenfeld was chairman of art education 1946 to 1960. In 1947 Creative and Mental Growth was published and became the single most influential textbook in art education during the latter half of the twentieth century, having gone through seven editions. This text was widely adopted in courses for prospective elementary school teachers throughout the United States. His book describes the characteristics of child art at each stage of development and prescribes appropriate types of art media and activities for each age. Its strong psychological orientation provides a scientific basis for creative expression and the practices that cultivate it. Lowenfeld's views of child art were grounded in constructs drawn from the psychoanalytic school of psychology in which evidence of aesthetic, social, physical, intellectual, and emotional growth is reflected in the art of children and the concept of stages of growth in art. He saw the free expression of children in artistic media as necessary for the healthy growth of the individual. A number of education students were drawn to Lowenfeld both through his text Creative and Mental Growth, and through extensive lectures and presentations given at state and national conferences throughout the late 1940s and 1950s.

Total Points (28 points possible)

Site Organization

Site Organization may include

- Systematic layout of pages
- Site map,
- Color-coding of information,
- Intuitive organization of links,
- Easy navigation, menus, back-buttons, etc

The navigation of the website is extremely well thought out and provides for both highly efficient and intuitive information acquisition	4
The website is easily navigated and the ease of acquisition of information is, for the most part, relatively clear-cut	3
While some functionality in the organization is apparent, there is also confusion as to the location and accessibility of various components, some of which may not be incorporated into the site's framework	2
Little concern for efficient or ease of information retrieval seems to have been built into the design of the website, and there may or may not be considerable gaps in the incorporation of elements in the site that would otherwise be helpful in providing basic functionality	1

Depth of Content

Depth of Content may include the following:

- Mission statement, Constitution & Bylaws,
- State Council, State Conference Information,
- NAEA Award Information,
- NAEA Regional Vice President Contact Information,
- NAEA Website link and information
- American Disabilities Act information
- VSA information

- State regions and contact information,
- Organization news, events, etc.

The site provides a wide variety or useful and accurate information in a professional and educational manner Links are provided to NAEA information Links are provided to American Disabilities Act with sufficient information Links are provided to VSA and sufficient information	4
There is sufficient depth and accuracy of content available in the website to make it a functional tool as both a source of information and communication Links are provided to NAEA information Some information is provided for Americans with Disabilities and VSA	3
There is some depth and accuracy to the content of information being presented, it appears to be uneven and in need of additional material and/or updating Links are provided to NAEA information Little information is provided for Americans with Disabilities or VSA	2
There is little depth or accuracy evident in the material being presented on the website making the dispersal of information and / or its value as a communication tool superficial No NAEA links are provided No links are provided to the American Disabilities Act information or VSA	1

Visual Impact

Visual Impact may include the following:

- Overall design and appearance of Home Page,
- Use of graphics, graphic organizers,
- Color choices for text and background, page composition, thematic organization, etc.

There is great consideration given to the aesthetic component of the design of the website that significantly adds to both its appeal and functionality	4
There is sufficient consideration given to the aesthetic component of the design of the website which helps in the facilitation of both its appearance and utility	3
There is some consideration given to the aesthetic component of the design of the website making it interesting from a visual point of view that may or may not add to its overall effectiveness	2
There is little or no consideration evident in the aesthetic component of the design of the website	1

Communication

Communication may include the following:

- Webmaster contact information, website policies,
- appropriate access to members,
- minutes from past state meetings,
- standing committees and chairperson contact information,
- member-to-association communication,
- member-to-member communication, such as lesson plan exchanges, blogs, forums, etc.

Extremely user-friendly and well thought out communication tools are provided in order to best serve membership exchange and interconnectivity, organization	4

improvement, and the needs of website guests
A good array of contact tools is available on the website to help facilitate needed communication for different populations.	3
Communication tools are available on the website but are not necessarily as user friendly or as well maintained as they might be	2
There appears to be little or no contact information available on the website that would allow for meaningful contact facilitation	1

Resources

Communication may include the following:

- Webmaster contact information, website policies
- Appropriate access to members
- Minutes from past state meetings,
- Standing committees and chairperson contact information
- Member-to-association communication
- Member-to-member communication, such as lesson plan exchanges, blogs, forums, etc.
- State Standards
- National Standards

A wide range of resources are presented in an extremely organized, very relevant and informative manner striking a balance between quantity and quality Resources are provided in order to best serve both membership as well as other guests	4
A good range of art education resources is presented in an organized fashion that is relevant and informative	3
Meaningful art education resources are available on the website but only provide basic information Organization is minimal. Too few resources to be truly helpful	2
There appears to be little or no resource information or links available Resources are irrelevant or unorganized	1

Interactivity

Interactivity may include the following:

- Online forms,
- Rollover text,
- Media such as animations, audio, and video clips,
- Discussion board, blog, wiki, podcasts, etc.

The site makes very effective use of several current technologies (such as graphics, text, audio, video clips, member discussion boards, blogs, wikis) for the association and its membership The use of multimedia and web technologies supports and enhances the content of the site Membership can access association forms and register online for the state/province association conference	4
Site includes several appropriate multi-sensory representations (graphics and text) that appropriately enhance and support the content of the site. Membership and general public can interact with the association through the website on a basic level.	3

Site includes a few multi-sensory representations (graphics and text). There is limited access to content through hypertext and images	2
Site is either only text-based or technology features that are incorporated tend to detract from the content. No examples beyond hypertext included	1

Holistic Evaluation (WOW Factor)

WOW! Factor present. The website is well, organized, visually appealing, the art education content and resources for members are meaningful and impressive a variety of options for communicating and interacting are available	4

Gilbert A. Clark and Enid Zimmerman Leadership Advocacy Award

Criteria to be used for selection of the awardee

Demonstrates leadership and advocacy:

- by participating in NAEA related activities
- in educational settings in schools, museums, and/or community centers
- at regional, national, and/or international levels
- through activities and/or inquiries that have not received noteworthy recognition

Agent of Change in Equity, Diversity, and Inclusion Award

The Agent of Change award emerged from a call to action in committing to equity, diversity, inclusion, and social impact by NAEA. As part of the 2021–2025 NAEA Strategic Vision, Equity, Diversity, and Inclusion (ED&I) was recognized as a “super pillar” in the plan; it is both its own unique goal as well as one that is interwoven across the other four pillars: Learning, Research & Knowledge, Advocacy & Policy, and Community Vibrancy. Additionally, the creation of this recognition is part of the recommendations made by the NAEA ED&I Task Force and implemented by the ED&I Commission.

Purpose

The purpose of the award is to honor an individual who exemplifies, demonstrates, and/or leads social impact or social justice efforts in the work they do within visual arts, design, and media arts education. We acknowledge that addressing systemic transformation requires agents of change, allies, and accomplices. The award intends to honor and amplify voices that have and continue to be marginalized and the added intellectual and emotional burden that such art educators face in the work they do in contributing to the advancement of equity, diversity, and/or accessibility in art education.

Key Questions to Consider

- How has the candidate promoted diversity, equity, and/or inclusion, and cultural competency development among NAEA members and/or within the communities they partner with?
- What key area of diversity, equity, and/or inclusion has the candidate been a champion for? (e.g., recruitment, retention, climate, community outreach, lead initiatives, increasing awareness and understanding)
- In what specific ways has the candidate advanced the fostering of diversity in their association/workplace to amplify the potential of multiple voices?

Eligibility

Active NAEA members who have presented on topics of ED&I in localized and/or institutional ways in art education while demonstrating sustained practices of social justice and offer a critical voice in the field and work collaboratively to uplift the voiceless and encourage positive outcomes as part of larger solutions to social change. ED&I Commissioners are not eligible for nomination.

Submit

Online nomination information, vita that highlights significant work, a cover letter of nomination, an additional letter supporting the nomination, and a voice recording providing a statement on the candidate's body of work and how it has exemplified equity, diversity, and/or inclusion OR a collection of works that document projects and scholarship in equity, diversity, and/or inclusion within art education.

Agent of Change in Equity, Diversity, and Inclusion Award Rubric (Total of 20 possible points)
